PERC would love to see a conference of this nature take place, so please let me know if we can be of any assistance in sharing the idea around.

Thanks!

Hey Todd and Jason,

This is just a quick follow up on a conversation Todd and Brian, PERC's new Executive Director, had earlier today to make sure everyone is up to date. Before coming to PERC full time in January, Brian served as the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commissioner and is interested in getting PERC more actively involved in wildlife policy.

Back in December, 2017, Brian met with Secretary Zinke and a small group of the state fish and wildlife executive directors to recommend a first-ever gathering of all the states' fish and wildlife conservation commissioners. The conference would be an opportunity to strengthen state and federal relations on fish and wildlife issues and could serve to broaden the base of support for the Department's work. Secretary Zinke gave the conference a thumbs up.

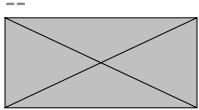

Attached is a full memo with more details.

We're wondering if the Department of Interior is still interested in holding a conference of this sort. If so, PERC would like to help contribute - perhaps as panel hosts or moderators.

Please take a look, and give me a call with any thoughts or questions. We would love to help make this happen.

Hope you both are doing well and have had a chance to catch your breath after the State of the Union!

Sorry we've not connected yet but looking forward to it and syncing up.

Not sure if this might work for you, but I am planning on being in DC next week. Actually moderating a panel that involves NPS, BLM, USFWS leaders/ reps on Wednesday afternoon -- you're likely familiar or involved.

If Wednesday in the A.M. works for you, would love to stop by and follow up on a few things. Maybe see Margaret too.

The idea is the Superintendent doing a fireside type chat about his vision for Yellowstone and his experiences. We would also like him to stay for dinner and spend the night at the ranch if that's convenient for him.

Thank you again Ben. Hope to hear back from you or the Superintendent!

Hi Todd and Ben,

Great catching up on the Commissioners Conference yesterday. A couple of follow up points. The conference would also be a great venue for leadership discussion of the Secretary's Big Game Corridor initiative, Agency Reorganization as well as thoughts on how ESA can be better done or implemented, and other big timely topics. All would be relevant to the group as they are not only the species and game management folks for each state but key sportsmen decision makers and sportsmen and women.

To give you some sense of the type of person who serves on the state Fish and Wildlife Commissions, in Florida alone in the time I've served we've had Jack Nicklaus' son Gary, the former Ambassador to the Bahamas John Rood, three time Miami Super Bowl host committee Chair Rodney Barreto and NFL Hall of Famer Dwight Stephenson among others who are ranchers, landowners, growers and businesspeople. All sportsmen, all conservation minded.

And you will have support of PERC, AFWA and others to do the lifting and support on organizing, invitations, agenda, etc. Have plenty of time to do sometime this year. Cheers!

Have a great weekend!

Great catching up today. As promised here's the invite to the event we discussed. Would love to see you there! And see you Wednesday morning for sure, Hannah Downey will be with me (she's moderator for 2d panel) . . .

Also, we just had a great workshop out here on Rethinking the North American Model of Wildlife Conservation -- Nick Wiley was here, Ron Regan, a couple state fish and wildlife executive directors, Arthur Middleton (who presented a paper on migrations), hunting media guys Randy Newberg and Steve Rinella, Shane Mahoney, Tony Schoonen with B&C, and handful of others. Great dialogue.

Challenges and Solutions to Improve Federal Lands Management

The Federal government owns 640 million acres of land and hundreds of thousands more in mineral rights below it. These lands are full of potential – natural resources, recreation, and wildlife habitat among them – and routinely involve tough management decisions.

Please join The Heritage Foundation and the Property and Environment Research Center (PERC), for a robust conversation on where federal land management policy is going and creative policy ideas for the future.

If unable to attend in person, the event will be live streamed here.

Panel I: Priorities, Challenges, and Opportunities for Improved Federal Lands Management:

Finding a Path Forward for Economic and Environmental Success

Dan Smith – National Park Service Deputy Director, Exercising the Authority of Director

Brian Steed – Bureau of Land Management Deputy Director, Exercising the Authority of Director

Chris French – Acting Deputy Chief, U.S. Forest Service

Marshall Critchfield – Advisor, Fish and Wildlife Service

Moderator: Brian Yablonski – Executive Director, PERC

Presentation: How We Pay to Play on Public Lands

Tate Watkins - Research Fellow, Property and Environment Research Center

Panel II: How We Pay for Federal Lands and Innovative Funding Solutions

Holly Fretwell –Research Fellow, PERC

R.J. Smith – Distinguished Fellow, Center for Energy and Environment, Competitive Enterprise Institute and Senior Fellow, National Center for Public Policy Research

Katie Tubb – Policy Analyst, The Heritage Foundation

Superintendent Cameron Sholly
Yellowstone National Park

Dear Superintendent Sholly:

Congratulations on your appointment as Superintendent of Yellowstone National Park. It must feel like a homecoming of sorts to return to the park where your distinguished career began.

We are pleased to invite you to lead a fireside chat for the forthcoming executive retreat titled "What Price to Play: How Do We Fund Outdoor Recreation?" to be held September 10 -13, 2018, at West Creek Ranch, which is located 22 miles from the north entrance to Yellowstone National Park. The retreat will begin with an opening reception and dinner on the evening of Monday, September 10 at 6:00 p.m. It would be wonderful if your schedule would allow you to speak to our group Monday evening. If not, Tuesday or Wednesday evening will work, too. A preliminary agenda and participant list are attached.

The event is co-sponsored by the Arthur M. Blank Family Foundation of Atlanta, Georgia, and the Property and Environment Research Center (PERC) of Bozeman, Montana. The Arthur M. Blank Family Foundation works to promote positive change in people's lives and builds and enhances the communities in which they live. PERC is a national non-profit research and conservation center that conducts research on environmental issues to find innovative solutions to tough environmental challenges.

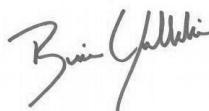

This will be a small, intimate group intended to be the basis for a longer-term collaborative effort. To facilitate open, honest, and robust dialogue, there will be no audience or media present. It is our hope that you will join us to kick-off this discussion by providing an overview of your vision for Yellowstone National Park and the future of public land recreation.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact us: Whitney Tilt (whitneytilt@gmail.com) or Brian Yablonski (brian@perc.org) or call PERC at 406.587.9591. We look forward to hearing from you at your earliest convenience.

Sincerely,

Whitney Tilt

Thank you, Brian. Great seeing you as well! Enjoyed your piece here. Great suggestions for taking SO 3362 beyond conversations and in to action with not just private landowners, but with the NGO's as well.

Hi Ben,

Attached is the invite to Superintendent Sholly with a list of participants and the agenda to help give him some context. We would be thrilled to have him spend an evening with this excellent group (it includes some of his new neighbors too.)

The idea is the Superintendent doing a fireside type chat about his vision for Yellowstone and his experiences. We would also like him to stay for dinner and spend the night at the ranch if that's convenient for him.

Thank you again Ben. Hope to hear back from you or the Superintendent!

Hello Ben,

Thank you so much for taking the time last week to sit down with Brian and me to talk a bit about the work PERC is doing on topics related to the Department of the Interior. A pretty good summary of the research we have done can be found in our report A New Landscape: 8 Ideas for the Interior Department. In this report we explore how markets and property rights can help deliver environmental and economic improvements in sections on national parks, LWCF, endangered species, grazing policy, and more. I hope this helps summarize some of the topics we talked about last week.

I also wanted to confirm Holly Fretwell's participation in the brown bag discussion on migration corridors on Thursday, November 29, and the BLM discussion on Friday, November 30. Holly has been a research fellow at PERC for nearly 20 years and is currently our Director of Outreach. She has long worked on public lands issues and is heading up some of our work on migration corridors. If you could please help provide me with some details about logistics for those two meetings I can take care of logistics on our end.

Thanks again for taking the time to meet last week. Please don't hesitate to reach out if PERC research can ever be helpful moving forward.

Best,

Hi Jason and Ben

I want to confirm the time and location of the forthcoming brown bags with the Department of Interior. It is my understanding that the meeting on migration corridors will be on Thursday, Nov 29 from 11:30-1:30 and BLM reorganization will be on Friday from 10 am until noon. What rooms will these be held in?

Is there any more information about the agenda for the meetings and is it possible to get a list of the potential participants?

Will there be a way to call into the Thursday wildlife migration meeting (Implementation of SO 3362) by phone? One of my associates, Catherine Semcer, is also working on the wildlife migration initiative at PERC and will be in the Bozeman office. It would be great if she could participate in the meeting, or listen to the discussion at the very least.

Good afternoon,
We look forward to seeing you tomorrow for the Big Game Migration Corridor Deep Dive.

While the meeting is still at Interior's Main Building (1849 C St., NW W.D.C.), we are moving the meeting to the Secretary's Conference Room (5160).

Some folks have expressed an interest in their colleagues calling in. Please have them use the following call-in info:

Call-In Number: (b) (6)
Pass-code: (b) (6)

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to reach out.

See you tomorrow!

Good afternoon,
You (or a representative from your organization) are invited to attend a brown bag lunch discussion with senior BLM staff on SO 3362 (Improving Habitat Quality in Western Big-Game Winter Range and Migration Corridors) on Thursday, November 29th at 11:30am at DOI (1849 18th St., NW) in the John Muir Room.

This is an opportunity to discuss your organization's specific priorities related to SO 3362 with senior Interior staff.

Please RSVP as space is limited and let me know whether you have any questions.

Best,

Ben

Thanks for including us in the conversations happening later this week. Holly is a wealth of knowledge on issues related to the Department of the Interior and will be a great addition to the meetings.

I'd certainly be interested in hopping on a call to discuss more of our thoughts on private conservation in the next week or so. I'm out of the office the end of this week and the beginning of next, but I'm flexible either this Wednesday (November 28) or next Wednesday (December 5) if either of those work for you.

Thanks!

Thank you so much for taking the time last week to sit down with Brian and me to talk a bit about the work PERC is doing on topics related to the Department of the Interior. A pretty good summary of the research we have done can be found in our report A New Landscape: 8 Ideas for the Interior Department. In this report we explore how markets and property rights can help deliver environmental and economic improvements in sections on national parks, LWCF, endangered species, grazing policy, and more. I hope this helps summarize some of the topics we talked about last week.

I also wanted to confirm Holly Fretwell's participation in the brown bag discussion on migration corridors on Thursday, November 29, and the BLM discussion on Friday, November 30. Holly has been a research fellow at PERC for nearly 20 years and is currently our Director of Outreach. She has long worked on public lands issues and is heading up some of our work on migration corridors. If you could please help provide me with some details about logistics for those two meetings I can take care of logistics on our end.

Thanks again for taking the time to meet last week. Please don't hesitate to reach out if PERC research can ever be helpful moving forward.

I'll continue thinking about any other ideas or contacts that might be good to involve in your private conservation roundtable. Holly's worked the most closely with the Western Landowners Alliance, so I've asked her to help brainstorm the best people in their organization to be a part of this conversation. She might even have a few ideas for you today.

Thanks again for involving us in the meetings these next two days, and best of luck in Argentina!

Hi Casey,

I will be joining the Thursday brown bag discussion on S.O. 3362 and migration corridors this Thursday. If possible, I would like to take a few minutes to sit down with you and chat about what PERC is doing on private conservation and how we can best be a resource to help keep working lands productive while enhancing wildlife habitat.

Do have some time just before or following the meeting that we could chat?

Thanks,

Hi Jason and Ben,

We just released a new issue of PERC Reports Magazine on changing demands in the West. You should be receiving a hard copy in the mail in time for the holidays, but I wanted to draw your attention to an article in the magazine highlighting the Department's work on offering incentive payments for wild horse and burro adoptions. In "A Wild Idea to Solve the Wild Horse Problem" Tate Watkins and I address the challenges of managing wild horse populations and how the adoption of an adoption incentive payment is a step in the right direction.

Thank you for your work on the issue, and we look forward to seeing how the first year of this approach plays out.

Best,
Hannah

Subject: [EXTERNAL] PERC article - Wild Horse Incentive Payments
Received: 2018-12-10T14:09:28-05:00

Hi Jason and Ben,

We just released a new issue of PERC Reports Magazine on changing demands in the West. You should be receiving a hard copy in the mail in time for the holidays, but I wanted to draw your attention to an article in the magazine highlighting the Department's work on offering incentive payments for wild horse and burro adoptions. In "A Wild Idea to Solve the Wild Horse Problem" Tate Watkins and I address the challenges of managing wild horse populations and how the adoption of an adoption incentive payment is a step in the right direction.

Thank you for your work on the issue, and we look forward to seeing how the first year of this approach plays out.

Best,
Hannah

Free market environmentalism provides a cooperative approach to resolving conflicting demands for resource uses. Read more in this issue of PERC Reports.

Rather than uniting the communities of the American West, the region's natural resources often divide them. Our newest issue of PERC Reports, the magazine of free market environmentalism, explores the shifting demands placed on the West's natural resources. The articles in this issue explore ways we can more amicably resolve competing demands between Old West and New West values—sometimes by reforming the institutions that govern the use and enjoyment of natural resources, and other times by advancing entrepreneurial, market-based solutions.

Dear Casey, Ben, and Jason,

I wanted to say thank you for pulling together the two DOI informational meetings and taking the time to sit down with me individually for a conversation. As you know, we are extremely interested in working on the state big game migration corridor plans. Catherine Semcer, a PERC research fellow, is taking the research lead on this project and attended the Montana state action plan meeting today.

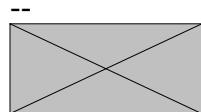

Catherine has been reaching out to a number of groups that are interested in digging deeper into corridor research and creating innovative solutions. She has contacted numerous representatives from conservation groups that would like to be a part of the conversation, including those in the list below.

Defenders of Wildlife
TNC
WWF
Trout Unlimited
American Forests
Western Landowners Alliance
Land Trust Alliance
Wildlife Conservation Society
Center for Large Landscape Conservation
National Parks Conservation Association

As the DOI and state agencies continue to work in response to the Secretarial Order, we are happy to work as a liaison with these groups or to pass along contact information to help the agencies include them in the conversation. PERC is creating a coalition for shared research and collaborative meetings to explore innovative solutions to incentivize habitat conservation.

Please let us know how we can best be a resource for you to help enhance conservation on public and private lands.

Best regards,
Holly

Do you have any programs within your organization focused on recruiting the next generation?

If so, is there a program lead that I can speak with to discuss the work being done?

If not, are there any programs out there that you consider to be doing exceptional work introducing hunting and the American conservation ethic to first timers?

Two articles below on hunter recruitment that you have probably seen by now.

Hi Ben,

One of the best programs I've been a part of is the Beau Turner Youth Conservation Center in North Florida -- it is a partnership between Ted's son and the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission. Amazing facility and opportunities for kids in the Tallahassee area to get exposed to hunting. In the field and light classroom work on conservation and the role of hunting. Kids there learn on the property (mostly Turner's hunting plantation lands) to duck, dove, turkey, deer and wild quail hunt. The latter behind pointing dogs and sometimes horseback and wagon. They learn to shoot and bow-hunting (with an amazing 3D bow-hunting course, along with a flying pig target). It was built to be essentially a "soccer" or "baseball" complex but for youth hunting and fishing. Close to town, top notch facilities, easy to participate. A place for all to congregate. This has led to the Florida Youth Conservation Network system, which has taken the Beau Turner concept and build it statewide. I can put you in touch with the Rae Waddell, she directs all these programs including the Beau Turner Center. Most kids in the Tallahassee area know of the Beau Turner Center or have been there. The challenge is to solve is parents who live in an urban or suburban area but might not themselves hunt or fish or if they do, might not have access or ability to expose a child.

We should probably catch up on other issues too. Welcome back to government!

Ben,

I will shoot you a separate email connecting you to Rae. She is great. Yes, I already have tickets booked to hit DC the first week of March. We are having our board meeting there on March 8. Are you around then? Maybe we have you stop by to do an Interior issues briefing? We will be at TNC in Arlington. One of their execs is on our board.

We should probably catch up on other issues too. Welcome back to government!

Hi Ben,

One of the best programs I've been a part of is the Beau Turner Youth Conservation Center is North Florida -- it is a partnership between Ted's son and the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission. Amazing facility and opportunities for kids in the Tallahassee area to get exposed to hunting. In the field and light classroom work on conservation and the role of hunting. Kids there learn on the property (mostly Turner's hunting plantation lands) to duck, dove, turkey, deer and wild quail hunt. The latter behind pointing dogs and sometimes horseback and wagon. They learn to shoot and bow-hunting (with an amazing 3D bow-hunting course, along with a flying pig target). It was built to be essentially a "soccer" or "baseball" complex but for youth hunting and fishing. Close to town, top notch facilities, easy to participate. A place for all to congregate. This has led to the Florida Youth Conservation Network system, which has take the Beau Turner concept and build it statewide. I can put you in touch with the Rae Waddell, she directs all these programs including the Beau Turner Center. Most kids in the Tallahassee area know of the Beau Turner Center or have been there. The challenge is seeks to solve is parents who live in an urban or suburban area but might not themselves hunt or fish or if they do, might not have access or ability to expose a child.

It is our board meeting. Probably 15 people in total. We are doing it at TNC in Arlington. They offered up their space to us for board meeting. We could discuss in advance issues you all are working on that would be of interest to them. But National Parks, big game corridors, wildlife/sportsmen issues, ESA reforms to help recovery of species by getting incentives right, agency reorganization all good topics. I am still working on agenda times but should have better sense this week.

Absolutely! It would mostly be an opportunity to talk about the things we discuss, direction of agency, and big initiatives like migration corridors, esa, national parks backlog, etc. Our board usually meets here in Montana so this is different doing our meeting in DC -- would be great to make the most of it. You all could come over anytime Friday morning of March 8. Doesn't have to be a long visit. Plus you would be coming over to TNC too.

Hello Ben,

As I believe Brian has mentioned to you, the PERC board meeting is occurring in Washington DC at the Nature Conservancy offices on March 8 and 9. He's hoping to highlight some of the migration and private conservation being done to our board.

We are wondering if perhaps you'd be able to join our board meeting for a few minutes on either March 8 or 9 to provide a quick overview of how the Department of Interior is approaching those issues. Ideally, we'd be interested in you sitting down with our board for about 30 minutes, but our schedule is relatively flexible so if there's a time window that works best for you please just let me know.

Please let me know if this is something you might be able to join us for or if you have any additional questions.

Thank you,
Hannah

Hi Todd,

Good catching up yesterday. We will be in DC in a couple weeks and I know you had mentioned getting us together with the Secretary.

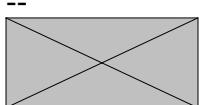

Here are some options:

Our board is meeting the morning of Friday March 8 at the TNC headquarters in Arlington. We have set aside 1/2 hour of time on the agenda for a DOI briefing on DOI priorities. Ben and I have talked about that. The Secretary could come over at anytime Friday morning to provide the update on agency priorities for our board. (and visit the TNC).

Another option is for me to come over on Thursday March 7 to meet with the Secretary -- I fly in Wednesday afternoon and could meet Thursday in the a.m. or after lunch. Would likely bring Hannah with me. We have an event at the Occidental later that afternoon. That would be my only conflict on schedule.

Thanks for your help on this.

A Breakthrough for Wild Horses in the West?

Using ideas from PERC research, the BLM recently announced a new program to increase wild horse adoptions

News for Immediate Release
April 11, 2019
Contact: Hannah Downey, 406-587-9591, hannah@perc.org

Caught between the overpopulation problem and laws that prevent culling, the Bureau of Land Management announced a new program to encourage more horse adoptions—an idea based on research from PERC scholars.

In an effort to find good homes for the overabundance of wild horses and burros on public lands, the new program will pay qualified adopters $1,000 to help cover the expenses associated with caring for horses and burros. Program savings for the BLM could reach up to $49,000 per horse, a 98 percent saving for taxpayers.

"Incentive payments for wild horse and burro adoptions have been researched by PERC scholars, and we are excited about how this program can benefit wild horses and burros, our rangelands, and taxpayers," said Brian Yablonski, PERC's executive director. Casey Hammond, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Land and Minerals Management in the Department of the Interior, highlighted PERC's role at a public forum hosted by the Heritage Foundation: "We're going to try to do economic incentives—I know PERC has done a lot of work on that in the past and that's very helpful—but we're going to try and encourage people to adopt."

"The BLM's Wild Horse and Burro Program attempts to balance a host of difficult biological and intractable political problems," explained Dr. Randy Rucker, a PERC senior fellow that worked on the original research. "The BLM's recent announcement is an important step in moving towards viable solutions. Because the BLM's estimated costs of holding a horse for its lifetime are $50,000, paying interested adopters $1,000 is money well spent. This new policy represents the sort of creative solution that will be required to control the taxpayer costs of this controversial program."

In an article published in the Deseret News last week, PERC researchers Hannah Downey and Tate Watkins explain how the incentive payments work.

Hello Ben,

PERC and the Noble Research Institute cordially invite you to be our guest at a reception and panel presentation on "Cultivating Conservation: Working Land Solutions for Migratory Wildlife" on Thursday, March 7, from 5:00 - 7:00 pm at the Occidental Grill and Seafood Restaurant.

PERC and the Noble Research Institute have joined together to explore the role of private working lands in environmental conservation and providing habitat for migratory species, including monarch butterflies, elk, and waterfowl. Private lands provide clean water, healthy rangelands, and habitat essential to wildlife along their migration pathways. We will be joined for this event by three ranchers and farmers who will share their experiences in balancing daily agricultural operations with conservation.

It's our hope that this event will provide some ideas for the Department of the Interior on how to involve agricultural landowners in wildlife conservation.

If you are able to attend the event, please RSVP by Thursday, February 28 by registering here.

Hope to see you there!

Hannah
